

ABSTRACT

A method for controlling the molecular weight of a polymer by permeating it with a small molecule while the polymer is in the solid state and subjecting the polymer plus permeant blend to a melt processing operation. Also the modified polymers made thereby.